can i add a comment in xml file like @mysite? ex: A: what i done is i used the link to first url to add the data to my database and i pass the url to that url as the link for second url. using xmlreader class i read the data from xml and used the data to create a string to pass to second url Q: Getting jsp or taglib to work with UTF-8 encoded properties file I'm working on a site that accepts from users an UTF-8 encoded properties file. The properties file contains a single key called "url" with a value of the complete URL. For example: ... url= The server then loads this into Java/Spring configuration, looks for a file called "url.properties" in the classpath, and parses it with this line: Properties properties = new Properties(); properties.load(new FileInputStream(pathToProperties)); But this won't work. The classpath search for the properties file results in: java.io.FileNotFoundException: classpath:/url.properties What am I missing? (I know I can do the search myself with URL.getPath(), but this is just a temporary solution. Besides, I would have to keep this file open for the whole lifetime of the application.) Thanks! the classpath: line is correct. make sure that the properties file actually is on the classpath. typically, it's on the server's runtime classpath, but it may also be present in your webapps deploy directory.
